Dear Friend/Supporter,

The story of TAPOL

Donate £25 or more for a free copy!

Your help, as a loyal supporter of our work, is needed for an exciting project to document the story of TAPOL and its role in recent political changes in Indonesia. Please give generously to help us meet the costs of the project.

Jeremy Seabrook, the well-known author and journalist specialising in social, environmental and development issues has agreed to write the book, which will:

- Draw upon TAPOL's experiences to illuminate the nature of dictatorship and show what can be achieved by human courage and persistence
- Illustrate positive outcomes of campaigns for human rights
- Tell an engrossing human story of what can be achieved against apparently insurmountable odds
- Provide a valuable introduction to Indonesia's modern political history and have an important educational impact in Indonesia

If you have any special anecdotes or reminiscences about TAPOL, which can be used for the book, please let us know.

Noam Chomsky says:

"TAPOL has been an indispensable source of news and in-depth analysis on the dramatic and often terrible events taking place in Indonesia: the massacres of 1965, the invasion of East Timor 10 years later and its near-genocidal consequences, the brutal repression in West Papua, the courageous efforts of many Indonesians to rescue their country from violence and destruction, and much else. Carmel Budiardjo's contributions have been incomparable. A record of the dramatic events and TAPOL's distinguished achievements throughout these bitter and sometimes inspiring years would be of very great value, not only for understanding the past but also for showing the way to a better future." February 2011

The project budget is £14,000. Please donate via our website at <http://tapol.gn.apc.org/support.html> or send a cheque payable to TAPOL to 111 Northwood Road, Thornton Heath, Surrey CR7 8HW. Mark the donation as being for the 'History Project'.

If you donate £25 or more and you will receive a free copy of the book. Please make sure you provide us with your name and address. Thank you for your valuable support.
